

Feel welcome

Our classrooms are designed to be comfortable. We hope you will find your favorite nook to curl up with a book ... or a dog.

Make friends

Nobody sits on the sidelines. Expect to make lifelong friends here.

Try something new

Every year you will get the chance to try something new, always with a guiding hand. You may find that stepping out of your comfort zone isn't as scary as you thought.

Get your hands dirty

We believe learning should be messy and immersive. Plan to get so wrapped up in a project that you may lose track of time.

Explore your interests

You will have a lot of choices. You may want to try softball, join the coding club, or pick your own research topic.

Be yourself

A group of diverse young people are laughing and smiling outdoors. In the foreground, a young Black girl with braids and a young white girl with glasses are laughing heartily. They are surrounded by other people in the background, some of whom are also smiling. The scene is bright and sunny, suggesting an outdoor setting like a school courtyard or park.

You will find yourself surrounded by people who celebrate all that makes you uniquely you.

Get out of your seat

Whether you are experimenting with a wind tunnel in the Early Childhood Exploratory Lab or testing weights and levers in Upper School science, you will spend more hours out of your seat than in it.

Work together

A group of people, including a young girl in a blue denim jacket, are gathered around a rope structure in a forest. The girl is reaching up to hold onto a rope. Several other people are assisting her, with their hands on the ropes and her back. The scene is outdoors, with trees and green foliage in the background. The overall atmosphere is one of teamwork and support.

When faced with a challenge, you'll often solve it as a group. Bringing together multiple perspectives results in great ideas.

Shine

A group of children, including a boy in the foreground and a girl behind him, are performing a dance on a stage. They are wearing black long-sleeved shirts and dark pants. The background is a vibrant, colorful mural with abstract patterns and shapes. The word "Shine" is written in large white letters in the top left corner.

In first grade, you will choreograph a dance for the Lower School Arts Assembly and in Middle School, you will help write and then star in the play.

See it for yourself

Why read about it when you can go see it? In fourth grade science, you will release salmon eggs in the Salmon River State Forest and studying ecology and sustainability in ninth grade may find you kayaking in the Pacific Northwest.

Go on adventures

A photograph of two young girls crouching next to a large tree trunk. The girl on the left has blonde hair in a braid and is wearing a light blue shirt. She is looking intently at something on the tree bark, with her hands near it. The girl on the right is wearing a pink jacket and purple leggings, also looking towards the tree. The background shows other people, suggesting an outdoor event or school activity.

Trek to the vernal pond, take a trip to the maple sugar shack or create a scavenger hunt in Spanish. You never know what you might find on a walk around campus.

Be a leader

A young boy with short, light brown hair is shown in profile, speaking into a black microphone. He is wearing a blue and grey zip-up hoodie. The background is blurred, showing other people in a room, suggesting an assembly or conference setting.

Your voice matters. At every step of the way, we will ask you to share your voice and offer new ideas. You can look forward to being a fourth grade assembly announcer or attending the Student Diversity Leadership Conference.

Here's what's waiting for
